Silence. A hush.
A whisper, a quiet word.

*Later, singing, dancing, running, shouting —
The surge, the gush, the burst of a new day begun.*

*A day, a year,
Unlike the past, predicting a change in the future.*

But it is Our day, Our year, a very special, unique time.

*The events, the occurrences devouring and retaining forever
Our toil, Our sweat,
Our bursts of laughter, and Our tears.
There have been triumphs and failures,
Hardships and good times,
Seemingly endless hours of work —
And yet those precious, fleeting moments of joy and happiness,
The passing of time, the year steadily, unceasingly marching by.*

*First came the rains; then the sunshine,
creeping, edging back
Once again.
The cold, the wind, the snow blanketing the earth.
Nature entwined with our thoughts . . .
Our feelings, Our ideas, forever changing.
Sometimes as subtly or as violently as the weather.
Today a certain opinion, a definite hope or dream;
Tomorrow a new concept, a new outlook.*

And yet behind the youthful glow lies that ominous, simmering
Darkness

Fear, forever present, wanting to thrust itself to the surface.
But ashamed, embarrassed,
Suppressing itself in loud voices, speeding cars, endless noisy parties, Blaring music – running, fleeing, trying to escape reality.
Afraid? Of what? Of the future, of decisions, of what might be.
Afraid of Life.

But we shall triumph. We shall, in the end, Attain our goal.

We shall never stop searching, reaching, grasping

Until we have thoroughly satisfied our hunger and quenched our

Thirst with the chalice of Life.

We shall continue to grow, to learn, to improve in every way,

And nothing, nothing will bar our path or deter our progress

For this is

Our World: Born of Change.

The newest project of the school board is the proposed addition to the senior high school. This undertaking will eliminate the present crowded conditions at Montour, thus affording each student a better atmosphere in which to learn.

Representing four communities, the school board is concerned with financial appropriations, personnel, curriculum, and the general functioning of the entire school district. Members of the school board are, without exception, able and civic-minded citizens; each has the capability and the desire to serve our school system.

We, the students of Montour, owe a debt of gratitude to the school board for its untiring efforts in our behalf.

administration

18

Mr. William Kearns, Vice Principal

Mr. Lynn Hayes, Associate Supervising Principal

Contrary to public opinion, school buildings do not come fully equipped with desks, supplies, and personnel. We are extremely fortunate to have dedicated, competent administrators who execute their jobs so masterfully that a consistent educational cycle is maintained at Montour.

Most men would not have been able to withstand the strain of a yearly parade of 1,000 illegible schedule forms that must be arranged into a practical daily routine for each student. But Mr. Harold Phelps, our principal, stalwartly struggles with this problem and inevitably comes up victorious. This is but a sampling of the tasks Mr. Phelps performs.

Did you ever wonder how mass confusion is avoided at our social and athletic events? The answer lies in the person of Mr. William Kearns, our vice-principal, whose other duties he handles equally capably.

The Supervising Principal and the Associate Supervising Principal are given the serious task of handling the financial end of our school. They must decide how the allotted amount of money can be budgeted to benefit each and every student at Montour.

It is because of these men that our school has risen to its present status in educational circles.

Mr. Raymond McCullough, Supervising Principal

counselors

Mrs. Virginia Morrow

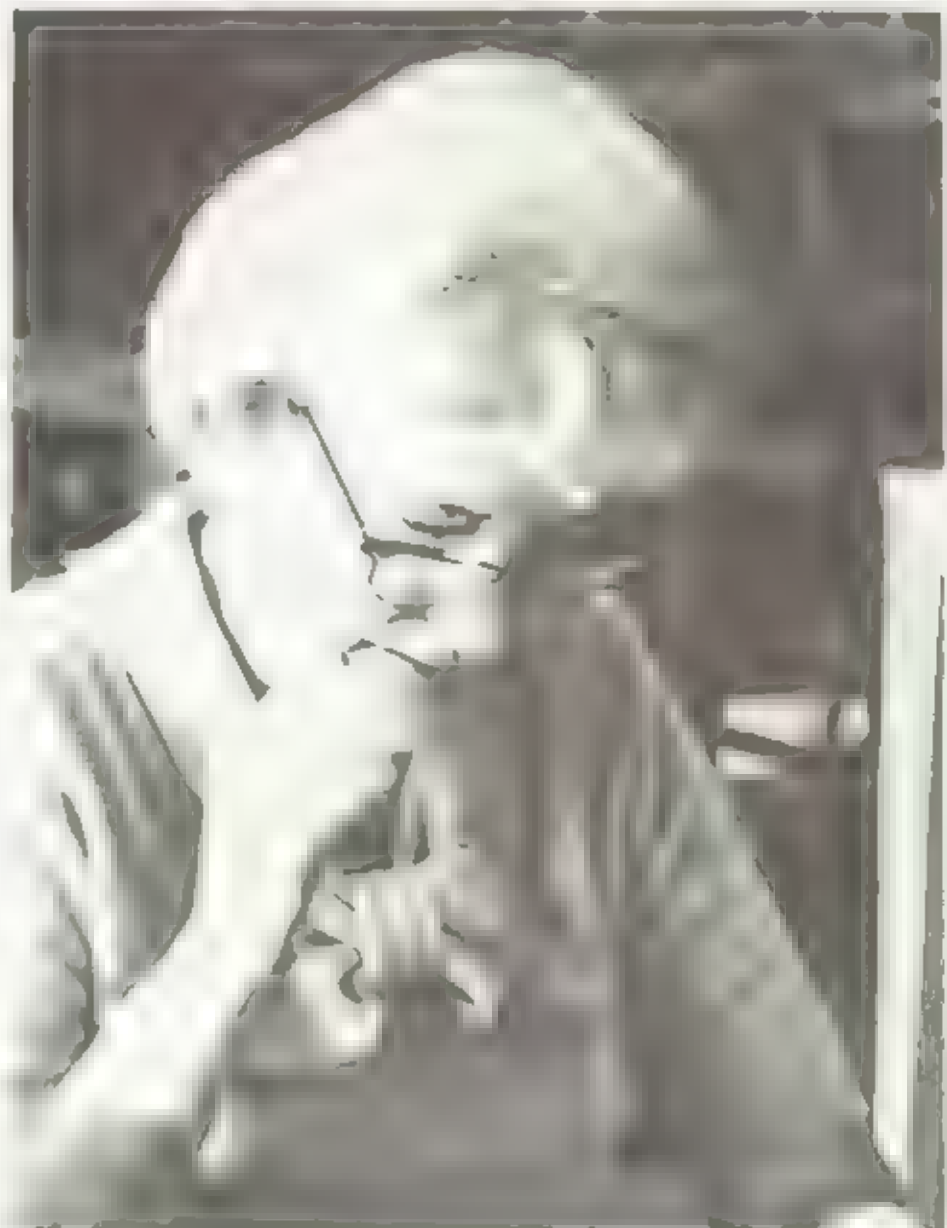

Mr. George Kasich

Often through our high school years we students at Montour are urged to ponder the future carefully. Our guidance department provides a sounding board for our hopes and our ideals. Mrs. Morrow and Mr. Kasich offer expert advice based on experience when they are approached with queries concerning collegiate or vocational plans. Their genuine concern for our futures is expressed in the counseling sessions in which we are given college catalogs to peruse or preference tests to aid us in finding a niche in the work-a-day world. As each seeks his own special place in the ever-changing community, we all pause to look back gratefully on high school days and the guidance we have received.

library

As we enter the library, it is obvious that it is more than just a place to check out books. It is also a quiet, cool haven in which to sort out one's emotions. In these uncertain times it is very necessary to have a place where one may sit and think without interruption. For some the library is a place of inspiration. To be seated among the works of the greatest men who ever lived, to read about their achievements and their failures gives some people the hope and the ambition to pattern themselves after these immortals. While the book section tells the story of success and failure in the past, the magazine rack tells a story of the achievements of our own age, an age of progress through learning.

Mrs. Mary Jane Beck

Mrs. Lois Hatfield

english

Mrs. Viola Pock

Mrs. Lillian Rokoski

It seems appropriate, on our tour of Montour, to begin with the English department, because the study of English is one of the few things in life, such as death, that are certain. Everyone, whether he regards it as a foreign language, a history, or a science, must take English. As a foreign language, English presents the side of our language that many students have never before observed. As far as they are concerned, punctuation, spelling, and parts of speech could belong to any one of the five Zulu dialects. When taken as a history, Montour's English courses provide invaluable information about men whose ideas helped shape history from the beginning of time. The intricacies of science are often less baffling than the correct use of the English language. It is now evident that English is not simply another course to be dealt with, but a consolidation of all facets of study.

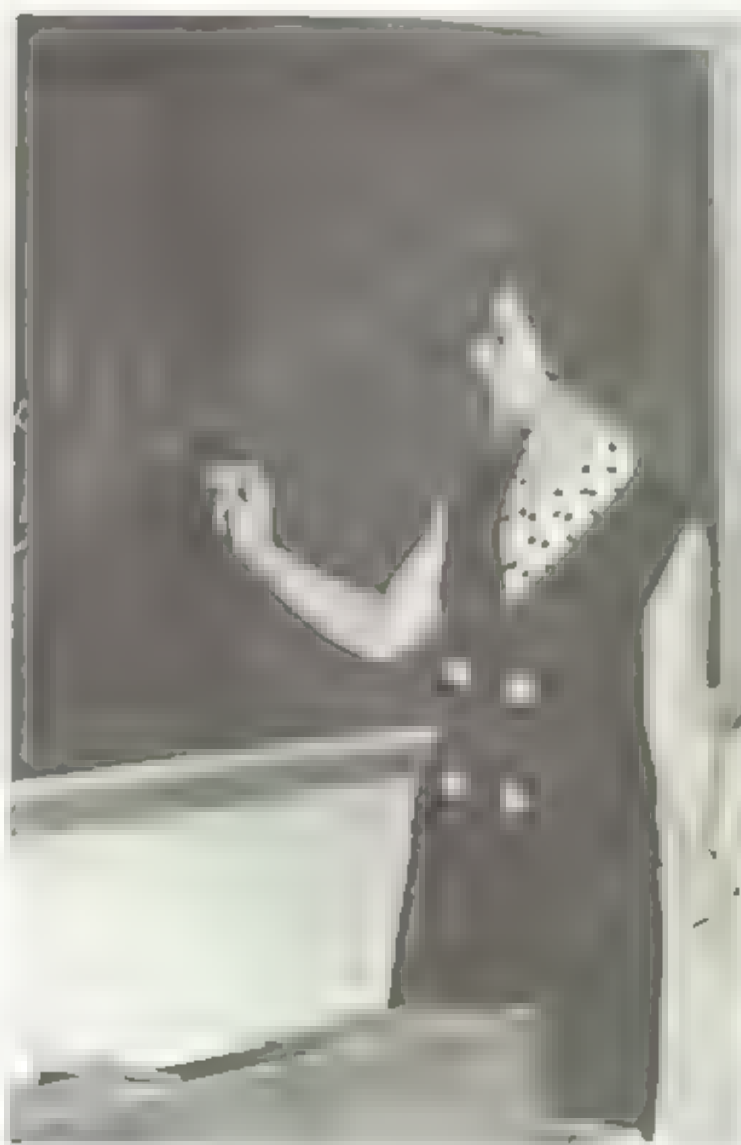

Each room in this department indicates the nature of the discussions carried on. In one an air of satire and humor is attributed to Silas Marner. Another room touches one with the sense of depth and perception displayed by our great American writers, such as Poe, Frost, and Sandburg. The last is enveloped in the palpable atmosphere created by the study of William Shakespeare. A fitting climax to our years at Montour, that study leaves with us a knowledge and wit that can never be lost or replaced.

Mr. Ralph Hofrichter

At Montour, the history courses are varied and wide. As sophomores we view man's progress from the beginning of time. Ancient history provides the basic fundamentals for our study of time, and we build other civilizations on our study of this foundation

American democracy is a way of life whose very origins rest on the principles of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." As juniors we vividly relive the accomplishments of our great nation. We are heirs to a young and proud heritage. Only yesterday we were thirteen colonies struggling for independence; today we are the most powerful nation in the world

The senior problems of democracy class prepares us to be good citizens. Here we become acquainted with the social, political, and economic problems facing America. We discuss the outstanding issues and questions we need to understand as we approach the time when our votes and our influence will become increasingly more important in molding public opinion and determining the policies of our government History is a journey through time; the present becomes more meaningful as we probe the past and contemplate the future. By the time we complete our journey, we have a fuller and more accurate understanding of previous and contemporary civilizations science

Mr. Edward Wovchko

Mr. William Smith

The best way to describe Montour's science department is to visit the classes in session. We first visit the biology room where a dissection is being performed. Many intelligent questions, such as "Is this the brain or the bladder?" are asked by our future medical students.

At our next stop a unique rotten egg odor assails our nostrils. We have come to the chemistry room, where a mass of black aproned students enjoy the trials and tribulations of lab day.

Leaving the chemists to their work, we enter the domain of physical science, where the students are gradually conquering the metric system. The only trouble is that a metric stick and a yard stick look so much alike!

In physics class the students are becoming acquainted with their slide rules. They are taught that a slide rule is a simple device which will make their work easier and more accurate. One can tell by the look on the students' faces that they are trying very hard to believe this.

mathematics

Mr. James Knarr

Miss Linda Wagner

Mrs. Judith Lucas

Mr. Joseph Marko

When we enter the math department, it is like entering an entirely different world, a world of cold, calculated reasoning devoid of human emotions and fallacy. Like science fiction, it is strange and different. Slide rules, log tables, right triangles — all help to complicate life with their mysteries. But these intricacies are not useless; they teach us perhaps some of the most valuable lessons, lessons of logical reasoning and orderly thinking. Besides these benefits, other types of math teach us how to get along in basic everyday transactions. We don't think about these minute actions, but they wouldn't be so simple if it weren't for the fundamental processes learned in math courses. We must all agree that even though the going gets rough, the results are gratifying

While there may be over five hundred languages in the world, Montour brings to its students three of the most important ones. Learning to read, write, and speak a language is a rewarding experience, but getting a first hand view of their culture and beliefs is fascinating.

A course in Latin may take a student back in time to ancient Rome where many legends and myths originated.

French can give students an entirely different outlook on life, the gay devil-may-care attitude that characterizes the French people.

Even the most serious student likes to day-dream about the romance and excitement of sunny Spain.

Even if one doesn't become an interpreter for the United Nations, the refinement and conversational ability the students receive from Montour's language courses will be a great asset in their later life.

business

32

Mr. Charles Connor

Mr. Dennis Wilson

Miss Mary Gentile

In our business department there is a variety of courses, but essentially these courses can be classified into two categories, the manual and the mental. The manual courses are those which teach the basic skills, the practical use of these skills, and a sufficient dexterity to use them in the business world.

The other side of the business department deals with the maintenance of the world of big business. It delves into the complicated dealings which involve the economy of our nation. But not everyone will become an important executive; there must be secretaries to keep the wheels of industry turning by performing their duties with skill and accuracy. Without the organization and efficiency resulting from these courses, it would be impossible for scholars and businessmen to function.

Miss Maria Anawich

Mr. Sidney Leff

Mrs. Joan Carter

The girls selected to work at Calgon are those who show promise and interest in the business world. After graduation these girls have the practical experience necessary to get the best jobs. This is another of the modern programs designed to give high school students more opportunities to succeed in life

Each year Miss Gentile selects a number of her finest students to do secretarial work for the teachers. The girls help the teachers to whom they are assigned with their time-consuming clerical work, such as typing and duplicating study guides. Besides relieving the teachers of a burden, the girls also get practical experience in coping with secretarial duties.

shop

As we can see from their yearly showcase display, the shop classes at Montour are very productive. These classes give the boys an opportunity to create; to build; and, most of all, to be useful. The shop classes simulate a true work situation that most of the boys will encounter when they are employed after high school.

Great steel machines stare at intruders and emit ear-splitting groans as the students go about their work in wood shop and metal shop. Even the operators in their goggles and black aprons look forbidding as they do their jobs in a very businesslike manner. In the mechanical drawing room, prospective architects and engineers hunch over their drawing boards designing tomorrow's world: a world of skyscrapers, machines, and men to man these machines.

Mr. James Newman

home economics

A wide variety of odors greets us as we enter the home economics kitchen. They issue forth from utensils of many sizes and shapes. Of course, home economics is not all cooking and eating. There comes a time when all the food is gone, and all the dirty dishes are yet to be done. The climax to this phase of the course is a tea given by the girls in each class for the senior girls.

Another type of education is offered in the next room, a room of pins, humming sewing machines, and colorful fabrics. Patience and accuracy are two of the by-products of the essential lessons taught here. A fashion show highlights the year and gives the girls an opportunity to demonstrate the results of long months of work.

Mrs. Susan Delaney

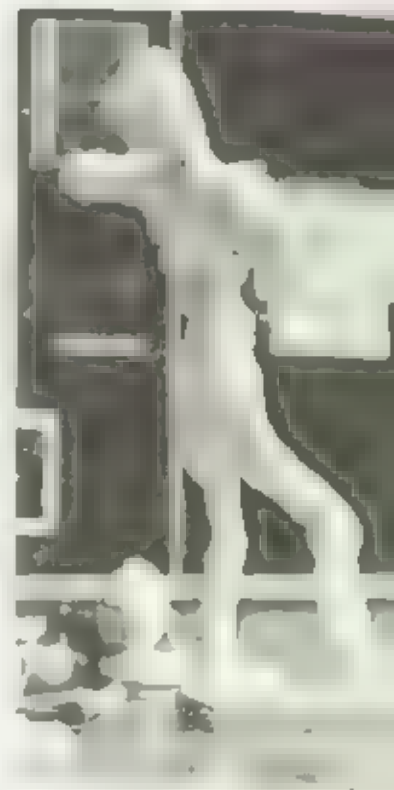

Miss Linda Drexler

art

Pottery making is IN — so are sculpting, weaving, metal etching, and plaster molding. And the art department at Montour keeps pace with current art concepts by providing facilities and instruction for these activities

But Raphael, Van Gogh, and Da Vinci are also IN, so the art classes read The Picture History of Painting, an absorbing book on art development from early cave paintings to modern art.

From Da Vinci to Op Art — the art student receives a comprehensive background for developing to the fullest his talents and creative genius.

physical education

Mr. Anthony Russo

Mr. Robert Phillips

At a glance, the appearance of the Montour gym tells us that there have been drastic changes in physical education during the past few years. The addition of new modern equipment shows that the standards of strength and dexterity required in these activities are rising.

More variety means that more specialized skills must be developed by every student. Specialized skills developed by girls, for example, means increased grace and poise in modern dancing and gymnastics; those skills bring boys the timing and precision needed to make a basket every time or to catch every pass. But the really important lessons learned in gym class are sportsmanship, co-operation, fair play, and team spirit. These are the qualities that go with us throughout life, the ones that make physical education necessary.

Miss Jean Condo

Miss Patricia Shearn

Mr. Charles Puhlman

personnel

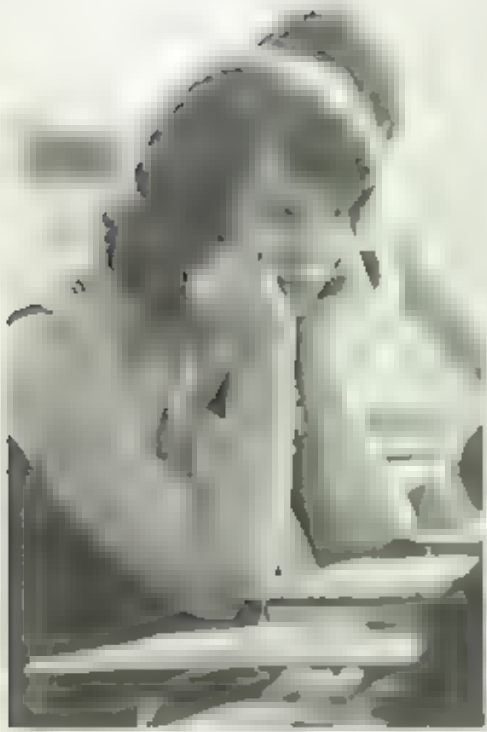

Many of us go through high school completely oblivious to the fact that the systematic functions of Montour hinge on a small but competent group of people. It is difficult to comprehend what it would be like walking several miles to school each day or coming into a frigid building each morning. We would probably go hungry at lunch time and it wouldn't be very pleasant if we were up to our necks in litter. These "little things" in life are much too often taken for granted.

These people are as important in school life as the tools of learning we use. In a sense, they are even adding to our education by showing us that without efficiency and organization, learning would be impossible.

Mr Hofrichter

The Student Council is probably the only organization that represents the entire student body and ours proves how responsible the pupils at Montour really are.

This year's prime objective was the erection of a permanent sign at the entrance to the school. Through the dedication and endurance of all the members and their sponsor, Mr. Ralph Hofrichter, sufficient funds for the completion of this project were raised. In addition to this they sponsored a Christmas semi-formal and made a generous contribution to the American Field Service program. The contribution that they made last year helped bring Peter Chittiwattanapong from Thailand to study here.

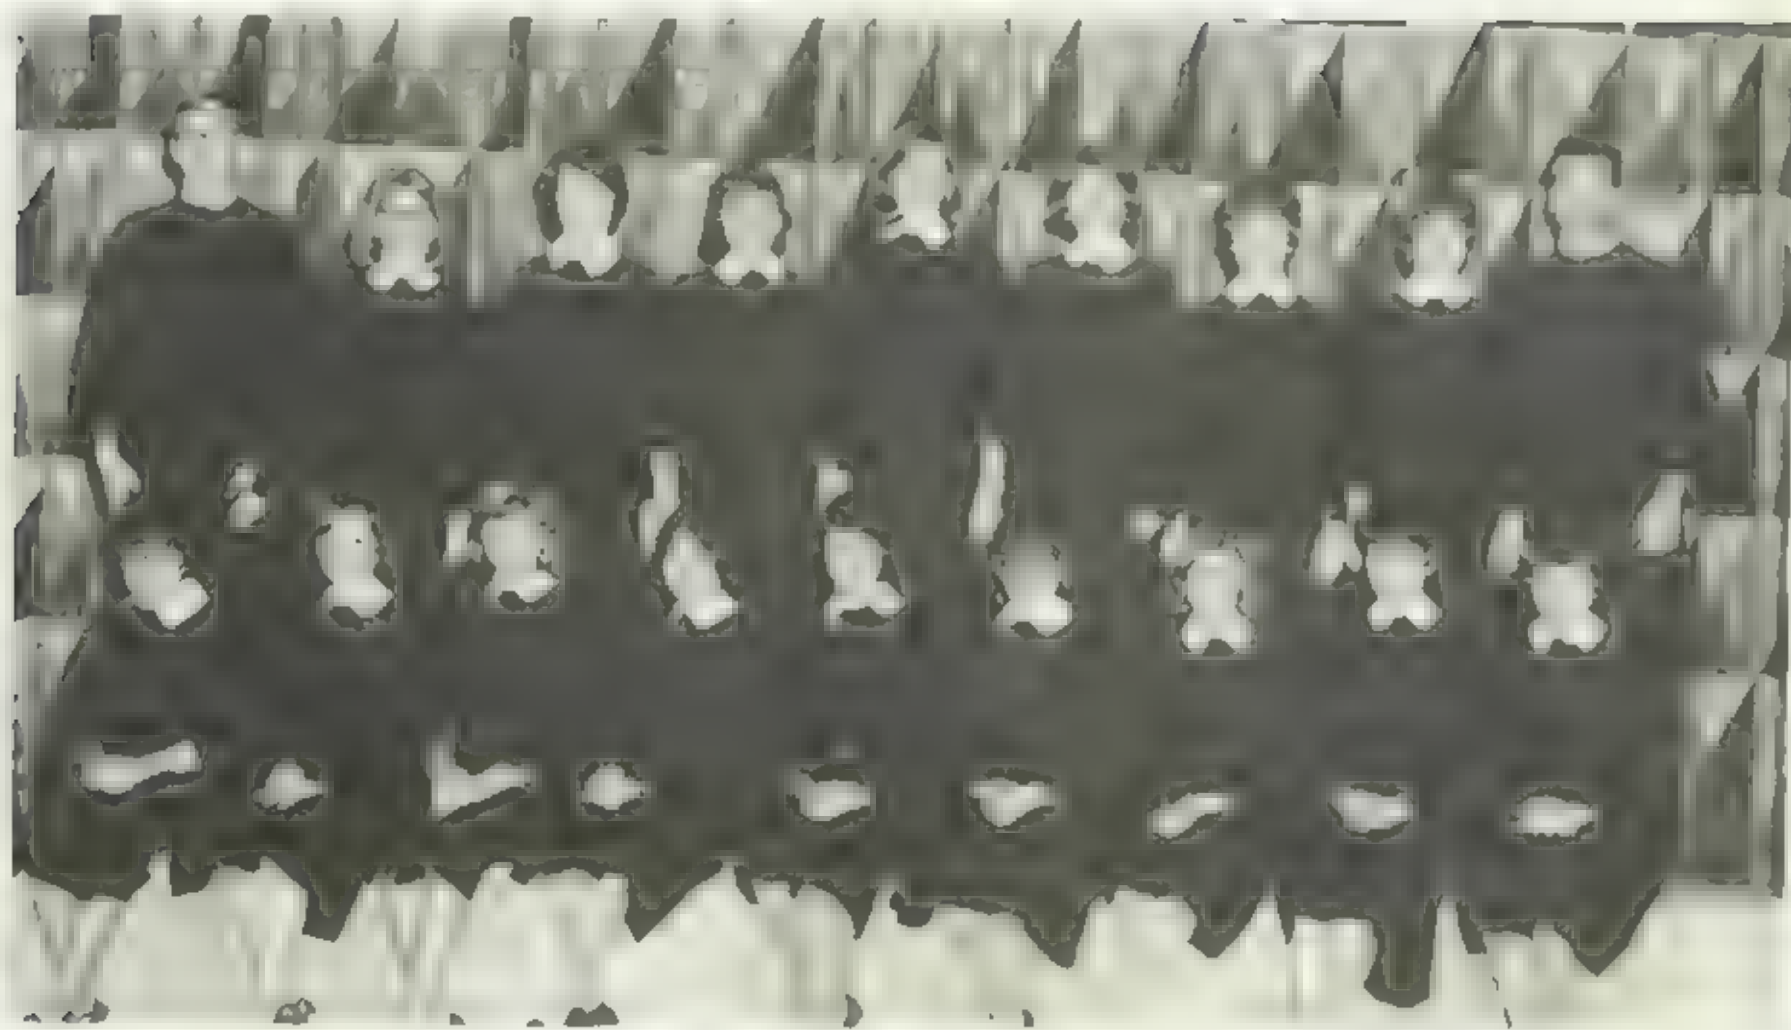

As the Student Council grows in value and prestige, the students of Montour look more to its members for leadership and guidance.

One organization at Montour stands apart from the rest. The members of the National Honor Society symbolize the qualities most desirable in all students: scholarship, leadership, character, and service. A tiny gold keystone and flaming torch on a person's lapel distinguishes him as a leader and scholar.

The primary objective of the Harold R. Phelps Chapter of the National Honor Society is to inculcate in all students at Montour the ideal characteristics of its members. To achieve their goal the students sponsor several fund-raising projects each year, ranging from the sale of slogan ribbons to a pancake dinner.

A debt of gratitude is owed Mrs. Pock, the sponsor of this distinguished society, for her guidance and assistance.

monitor

The most important medium of communication in our modern world is the newspaper. This year the prime objective of the Monitor was to provide something of interest for every member of the student body. The editorials were instrumental in awakening us students to the problems, national and personal, which will confront us. Excellent sports coverage enabled us to keep up with athletic activities at our school. By way of letters to the editor, we were given the opportunity to voice our opinions on any subject. The Monitor is a vital part of student publications at Montour.

student united nations

Portuguese imperialism in Angola, the admission of Red China, and birth control are only a few of the issues confronting the S.U.N. Fashioned after the authentic U.N., in New York City, the Student United Nations' objective is to give members a valuable insight into the construction, the operation, and the purpose of the adult organization. Through mock assemblies, which are held at various schools, members are able to express their opinions on issues as ambassadors, delegates, committeemen, and block members of foreign countries. Although the Student United Nations is incapable of solving world problems, it does inspire its members with the true meaning of universal peace and security, which is to live together in peace as good neighbors.

junior classical league

Mr. Berg's Junior Classical League is a national society that brings together the Latin scholars of Montour. Through a field trip to the Carnegie Museum the members were able to learn more about Greek and Roman influences on our civilization; to observe the similarities; and to see, through relics and histories, a glimpse of the past. The influence of this organization adds a touch of sophistication and drama to our school life.

One of the growing needs of the twentieth century is for the peoples of the world to learn to know one another. During the school year the French Club endeavored to instill in its members the spirit of friendship and to promote the interest of American youth in our sister country across the sea, France. To achieve this goal, the French Club invited a French foreign exchange student to address the group and also asked Mr. Ralph Hofrichter to show colorful slides of his travels to European countries.

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Colleen Marko, the group held their annual Christmas party and spring banquet.

spanish club

The purpose of the Spanish Club, under Miss Monaco's direction, is to provide cultural enrichment for those who have studied or are presently studying Spanish. At meetings they often speak Spanish to familiarize the members with the use of the language. Movies on Spain and Mexico were shown this year to give the members more insight into the language they studied. It is obvious that the members of this group increase their facility with Spanish by active participation in its activities.

To aid others in learning is the dream of every F.T.A. member

Each year as an educational project the Future Teachers of America, under the sponsorship of Mr. Marko, undertakes to raise money for a scholarship fund. This year funds were raised by sponsoring a bowling day. The proceeds went to a worthy college sophomore who is majoring in education.

In the spring of the year a Teachers' Day was held. The members of the club had the opportunity of playing "Teacher for a Day" in the high school, the junior high school, or the surrounding elementary schools.

The year came to an end as the members were awarded pins in recognition of the contributions they made throughout the year.

Mrs. Delaney

The Montour Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America offers a program each year that will satisfy a variety of interests. The main purpose of this organization is to further an interest in the home and help prepare girls for a role as homemakers.

The girls of F H A sponsor a Halloween party each year for children of our faculty members. The annual Christmas party at Children's Hospital brings joy to the little ones and a sense of satisfaction to the girls. Another worthy project for which the girls volunteer is working as nurses' aides at the Allegheny Valley Home for Exceptional Children. As a final gesture a swimming party is held for all members and a dance is sponsored by these girls.

This organization, under the guidance of Mrs. Susan Delaney, has done its share to prepare girls for a future in the modern world of the home.

The values of positive health are increasingly being realized by the public; for this reason, there is a great demand for professional nurses. At Montour, the Future Nurses' Club introduces young girls to a profession which ranks high in honor and in effective service to the community.

With their sponsor, Mrs. Mary Rogers, the girls conducted their annual U.N.I.C.E.F. drive at Halloween. A local hospital was visited, as the members continued to consider the possibilities and the potentials of the nursing profession.

In cooperation with the United States Marine Corps, the Future Leaders of America conducted their annual 'Toys for Tots' drive. The purpose of this project was to provide toys at Christmas for underprivileged youngsters. Another project was to send flowers to faculty members who were ill. These are only two examples of goodwill promoted by the F.L.A. With their sponsor, Mr. Jeff, the members formed a bowling league which met weekly.

Election to the F.L.A., which is restricted, is a coveted honor at Montour. The main purpose of this organization is to recognize the leaders of tomorrow and to develop the character of its members.

In our ever-changing, modern world, science is the key to man's discovery of the unknown. The Future Scientists, under the direction of Mrs. Jean Kasperko, this year gave Montour students an inside view of numerous scientific vocations. Guest speakers, experts in the field of engineering, chemistry, medicine, and physics, addressed the members at the various meetings. A number of field trips were made to neighboring structural and chemical research plants.

Every Thursday morning during the activity period, F. S. A. members challenged each other in a game of chess. An affiliate of the F. S. A., the Chess Club consisted of members who wished to better their skills in this intricate game.

Although a new organization, the Future Scientists of America has become a prominent member of the extra-curricular groups at Montour.

The students who belong to the Future Business Leaders of America are those who plan a future in the world of "big business." This organization, sponsored by Mr. Wilson, provides guidance and experience for these prospective secretaries and executives. Fellowship with people who have the same ambitions and desires is the fundamental and most important purpose of this club. The F.B.L.A. did much this year to promote school spirit and to keep the students organized and well-fed by selling Spartan folders and peanuts.

cheerleaders

"Team, team, rah rah team!" This cry is heard throughout the year as the cheerleaders follow the Spartan teams to many victories. The purpose of our cheerleaders is to foster good sportsmanship and loyalty among the students of Montour, to lead pep assemblies and games during football and basketball season, and to promote good will among schools. Humility in the face of victory and smiles in the face of defeat are the qualities that mark these girls. Sponsored by Mrs. Morrow, the cheerleaders work throughout the year to create an atmosphere of good sportsmanship at Montour High.

spartanettes

A burst of color and the Montour High School Spartanettes march on the scene, waving their black and gold pom poms to the tune of a popular hit song. These girls are also part of the band and work closely in unison with the band and the majorettes. The pride that they feel is reflected in their smiles, their movements, and their hard work. Long, hot months of practice at band camp and long, cold marches in freezing weather have all failed to dampen their spirits; they march for the glory of Montour.

majorettes

The majorettes with their glowing batons and flashing smiles were a marvelous sight from the bandstand at football games. But we can never fully realize the time that went into the perfection of each movement. As an affiliate of the band, they have their own instruments, their batons, which they use with as much skill as fine musicians. The loyalty and the devotion that these girls show are examples of true and unblemished school spirit.

Band Head
Debby Linsel

"... five, six, seven, eight! To the rear, march!" Hoarse voices shouted and weary marchers paraded the length of the field at band camp.

"Presenting the Montour High School Band under the direction of Mr. Joseph Picchi." Step off, and the band moved into formation at the football games' half-time shows.

"First place in the high school marching band competition — Montour!" Another victory and another trophy for the band showcase

These cries rang in the band members' ears from the start of practice last summer until the triumphal climax, a concert on the steps of the Capitol in Washington, D.C

The biggest and best sport at Montour was, is, and always will be football. With cheerleaders, Spartanettes, Majorettes, Pep Club, band, and just ordinary Spartan fans to back them up, our team had the support needed for a winning season. Unfortunately, Montour was knocked out of the "Class A" race when we tied with Moon. This was the first game we had not won in "A" competition since 1961. Our victories in the last five years also include two "Class A" championships. Coach Phillips remarked after the Moon game that nothing had changed; we were still undefeated, and the boys would take it from there.

Chuck Burkhart and Keith Grgurich co-captained the young team. Next year should produce another championship team because over half of this year's squad will be returning. One thing is certain — the pigskin will be over the opponents' goal line time after time in each and every game.

Sparks of electricity ran through the crowd at every basketball game, as we made basket after basket. Beads of perspiration trickled down the boys' backs; along the sidelines, cheerleaders led chants and yells that filled the gym and smothered the cries of our opponents.

Another familiar sight — or sound — was Coach Russo's voice expressing his opinion or giving advice from the bench. He was the inspiration behind the team's effort. The endless hours of practice, making shot after shot, were not in vain if Coach Russo was pleased.

baseball

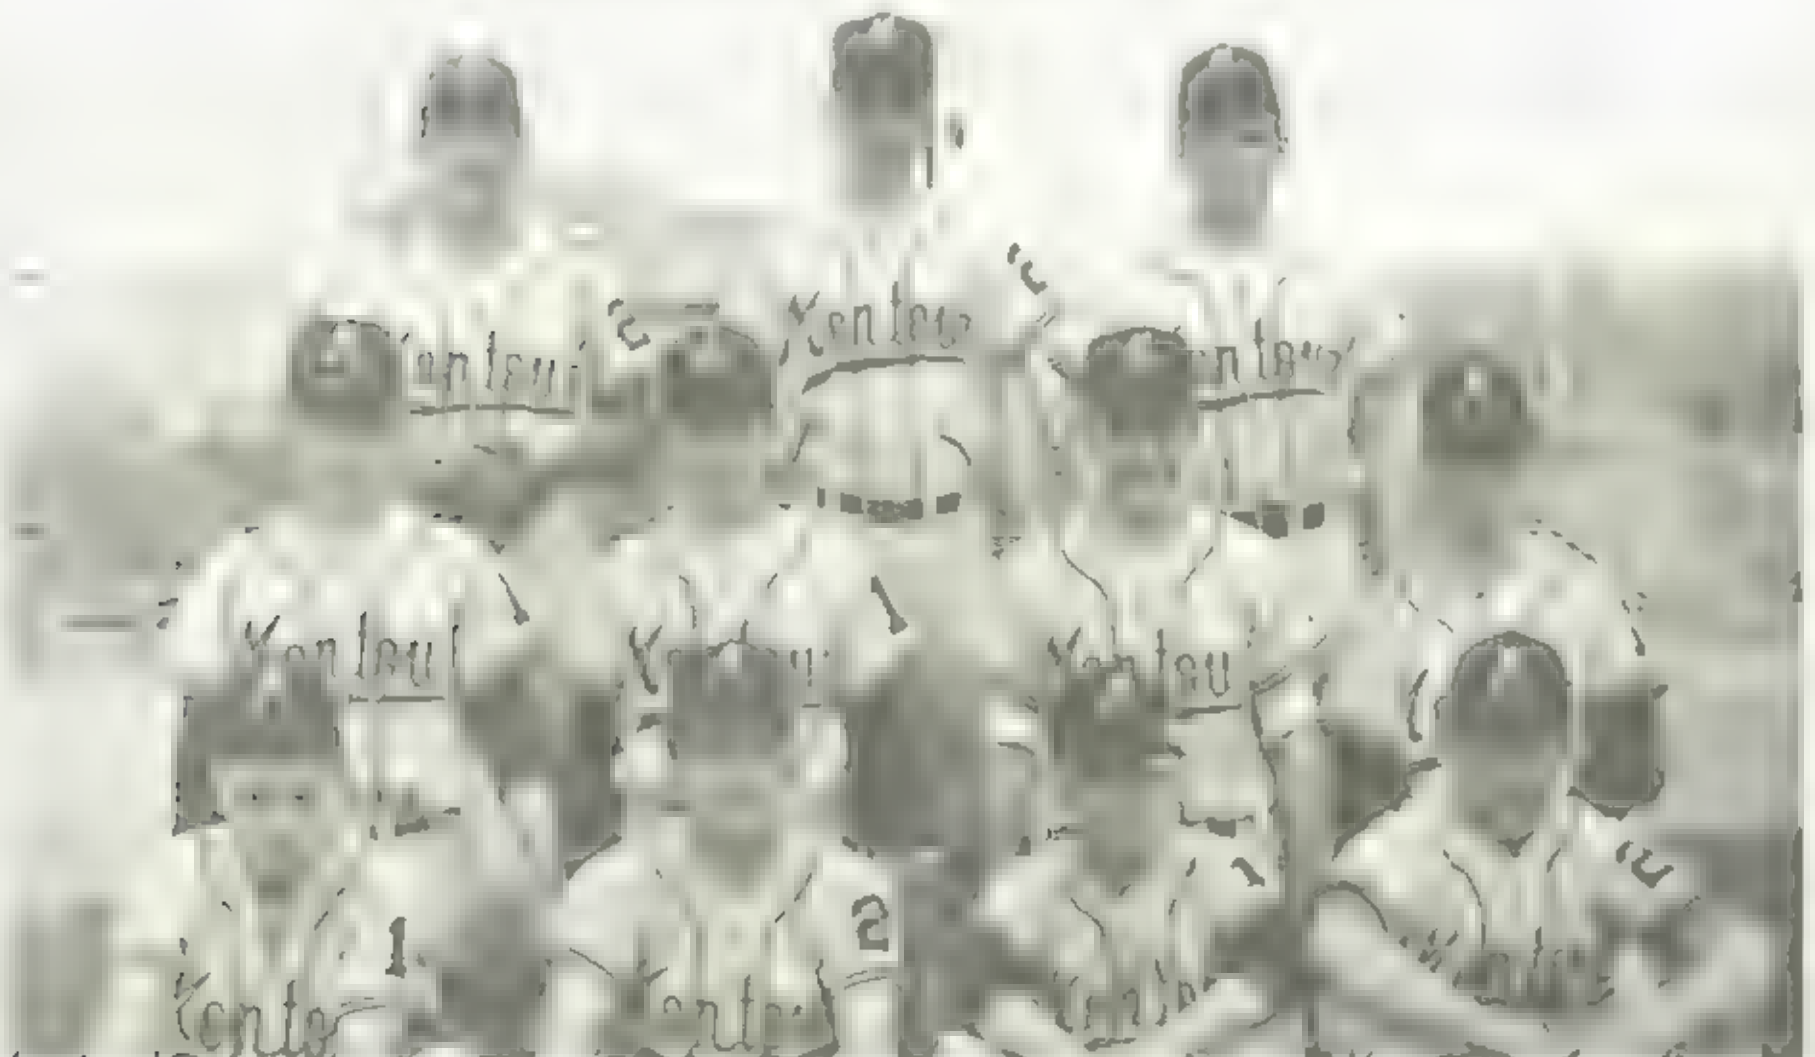

From the first crack of the bat to the last out of this season Montour's baseball team showed the spirit and sportsmanship which has come to symbolize Montour in all sports. The team's first concern was to do its best, and the effort resulted in victory time and time again. Whether sliding home for the winning run or catching a line drive for the third out, the boys weren't thinking about the dirt or the sting of the ball striking the glove, but about reaching their objective.

Coach Birko, a respected and able leader, was an inspiration to the team. Under his direction they sweated and practiced. Each play was repeated until every boy executed his part successfully.

Every year there is a baseball team and every team brings more glory to Montour, but there is always something unique about "our" team.

track

Our new track field proved to be a remarkable morale booster. Even before the field was finished, the boys were practicing on it. They ran in the rain when the field was a sea of mud; when it was dry, they choked on the red dust stirred up by many pounding feet. The fact that it hurt when they landed was accepted as one of the hard knocks of life. Finally their endurance was rewarded when the track was completed. The team's pride showed in its outstanding performance. The members of Montour's track team are a prime example of the strength and agility prevalent in our student body, mentally as well as physically.

Much of the success must be attributed to the hard work of the coaches. Coach Butler and Coach Cavitt, who are themselves fine athletes, worked alongside each participant, to urge him on to victory.

"Fore!" This cry echoed once again over the fairways of the Coraopolis Heights golf course as the Montour golf team began preparation for another season of competition. Basically this was a year of team reconstruction with signs of great promise coming from the sophomore class. Our team had two veterans returning for another golf season and strengthened its ranks with eligible juniors, sophomores, and seniors.

From the tee to the green, golf is a sport demanding strength, skill, and patience. These factors make the difference between a pro and a "duffer." Montour has proved by experience that hard work and practice bring good results. Under the excellent leadership of Coach Marko, Montour's golf team was again recognized as a team with drive.

This year, for the first time, our school had a girls' volleyball team. In years past we had "All Star Teams" composed of girls chosen from among the participants in intramural volleyball. But this year the coaches Miss Shearn and Miss Condo held tryouts for the positions on the team and selected the girls on the basis of the skill they exhibited. The coaches' choice of girls proved exceptional and the proof of this stands in their impressive record.

Now in its fourth year, the girls' basketball team has established a permanent place in athletics at Montour. Captained by Sue Drexler and Ginny Lysick, the girls racked up an impressive record of victories. The long hours of practice did not go unrewarded as the team continued to win game after game. Team members who exhibited superior skill in basketball were awarded letters at the annual Girls' Athletic Association banquet in the spring; girls participating for three years also received jackets. Through the hard work and dedication of the girls and the excellent coaching of Miss Jean Condo and Miss Patricia Shearn, the team has enjoyed several fine seasons.

TO THE CLASS OF 1966

Your success and happiness lie in you. External conditions are the accidents of life. The great enduring realities are love and service. Joy is the holy fire that keeps our purpose warm and our intelligence aglow.

Resolve to keep happy, and your joy and you shall form an invincible host against difficulty.

— Helen Keller
